Patriotism, to me, means having a strong love for and commitment to my country. This includes valuing the contributions of those who serve, like veterans and active-duty military members. These individuals make great sacrifices for our country, and it's important to show them respect and appreciation. Honoring those who have served and those currently serving, like my mother and father, is very important to me. My mom is in the Navy, and my dad is in the Marine Corps. They have each served for over 18 years and have sacrificed a lot for our family. Patriotism can be expressed by supporting local businesses, participating in community events, and volunteering. Even something as simple as displaying the American flag shows support for our country. In conclusion, being a patriot involves caring for your country and actively contributing to your community.
